On behalf of its members, the property action group “Abusos Urbanisticos Almanzora No!” (AUAN) wishes to object in the strongest possible terms to the article titled ‘Duro ataque de la comunidad británica de Cantoria a las autoridades españolas por el caso de las viviendas ilegales’ published 2nd September 2009 by Teleprensa.es.

This article by an unnamed author makes unsubstantiated and unproven statements that British residents in Cantoria knowingly purchased property on non urbanised land, made ‘black money’ payments to avoid Spanish tax, bought houses cheaply and most bizarrely of all, moved to Spain to take advantage of a free health care system.

We say to Teleprensa, please name your source, prove your facts or retract this article.

This sort of inflammatory nonsense contributes nothing to resolving the crisis in the Andalucian property market. What sane person thinks that it is a good marketing strategy to accuse foreign purchasers of homes in Andalucia of criminal behaviour?
